SELMA, AL, February 6, 2009 – The Black Belt African American Genealogical and Historical Society, Inc. will host the 3rd Annual Genealogy Conference and Family History Fair on February 20-21, 2009 in historic Selma, Alabama. In past years, this event has brought together more than 100 novice and advanced family researchers from Alabama and around the country to learn about research methods, techniques and resources, cemetery preservation, family reunion planning, using the internet, DNA and more from some of the area's foremost experts in genealogy and the heritage of African Americans in the Black Belt.

This year's theme – Our History is Our Strength – is tied to the Alabama Department of Tourism's "Year of Alabama History" campaign. In addition to workshops, presenters will showcase their family research case histories, stress the importance of collecting family stories and discuss the upcoming Alabama African American Heritage Book and discuss the unique sites, arts and traditions of the Black Belt National Historic Area.

Award-winning novelist, poet and playwright Pearl Cleage will be the keynote speaker at the Awards Luncheon to be held at the historic St. James Hotel on February 21st. Among her many works, Pearl is the author of novels What Looks Like Crazy on an Ordinary Day (an Oprah's Book Club selection), I Wish I Had a Red Dress, and her latest, Seen It All and Done the Rest, and of "We Speak Your Names", the poem written for Oprah's Legends Weekend. A book signing will immediately follow the luncheon.

The conference will take place on Friday and Saturday, February 20-21, 2009 from 8:00 am - 5:00 pm at the Carl C. Morgan Convention Center, 211 Washington Street, Selma. The two-day conference registration fee, including the Awards Luncheon, is $99.00 for non-members, $79.00 for members; Saturday-only registration is $49.00/$39.00. A limited number of tickets are available for the luncheon only at $35.00.
